OVER 100 SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA ARTS AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATIONS UNITE FOR #BayAreaArtsTogether

Aimed at building confidence for a safe and healthy return to in-person performances, exhibits and events, the campaign will remind patrons of the power of the arts to connect, heal, and unify

SAN FRANCISCO (November 9, 2021)—Over 100 arts and cultural organizations from throughout the San Francisco Bay Area have joined forces to create #BayAreaArtsTogether, an integrated marketing and communications campaign aimed at building confidence for the safe and healthy return to in-person performances, exhibits, and events. Using a series of videos and print & digital assets that focus on one word—READY—the campaign will serve as a reminder to patrons of the power of the arts to connect, heal, and unify.

#BayAreaArtsTogether was created in recent months out of a shared interest in working together to ensure Bay Area residents feel comfortable returning to arts and cultural organizations that have been closed for such a long time due to the COVID-19 pandemic. While numerous studies have shown that patrons are excited about the return of in-person events, there's understandably a level of hesitancy that accompanies the re-entry process, ultimately impacting how and when organizations re-open. With safety and health at the forefront, #BayAreaArtsTogether aims to unite the Bay Area community around the arts.

“Over the summer many arts and cultural leaders were discussing how we can ignite the Bay Area community to return to our offerings after being sheltered-in-place for such a long time,” said Jennifer Bielstein, Executive Director of American Conservatory Theater, who spearheaded the effort. “We rolled up our sleeves and came together around how our community has missed what arts and culture bring to their lives and how we are collectively READY to welcome people into in-person arts experiences again. We’re READY to explore, learn, laugh, be moved, be inspired, and get re-connected to each other.”

#BayAreaArtsTogether is the result of a collective efforts involving a number of individuals who volunteered their time and talent to create the shared campaign. Larry Williams (Creative Director, San Francisco Symphony) and Jayme Catalano (Director of Marketing and Communications, Shotgun Players) created the messaging concept and designed the materials. Elizabeth Orcutt (Communications Director, Diablo Regional Arts Association), Peter Chenot (Director of Marketing, TheatreWorks Silicon Valley), and Sunshine Lampitoc Smith (Communications Manager, Theatre Bay Area) developed the website for the group’s efforts. Additional copy was created by Lindsay Wright (Associate Director of Communications, Oakland Museum of California) and Nisha Gulati (Associate Director of Digital Strategy, Oakland Museum of California. Kevin Kopjak (Founder, Prismatic Communications) is leading the public relations efforts.
